Strategic Objective 2. Localization

2.a First Responders Programme V2.0

Importance of local response & localisation in disaster response
(Dr. Musiwalo Moses Khangale, Director of Fire Services of the Republic of South Africa)
SESSION 4. ISG’S DECISIONS ON 7 KEY ISSUES

Rationale for Investing in local action

- Many regions including Southern Africa are experiencing an exponential increase in weather-related disaster risks, linked to climate change & variability, increase in urbanisation, growing wild land urban interfaces, etc.
- These risks are compounded by limited institutional capacity at local level.
- Tropical storm Eloise that originated in the Mozambique channel during January / February 2021 and ravaged parts of South resulting in over 30 fatalities is an example of these hazards. Most of the fatalities were caused by drowning – thus there is an urgent need to enhance water rescue and wide area search capabilities.
- Communities are first responders to these disaster occurrences – their first-hand knowledge of the issues affecting them is critical to enhance preparedness & build resilience to hazards.
- Local community response strategies and programmes should be flexible and context specific.
Rationale for Investing in local action

- Global disaster response networks such as INSARAG must be responsive to this emerging reality and put measures in place to respond to the evolving needs of communities outside typical structural collapse scenarios.
- While structured response offered by classified USAR Teams remains necessary, INSARAG should consider adapting its capabilities to optimally respond to disaster incidents triggered by severe weather occurrences.
- Investing in local community response resonates with the UN slogan of "as local as possible" and will contribute to ensuring that INSARAG remains fit-for-purpose.
- The flexible response training package will be beneficial for many developing countries especially in Africa where there is limited structured / organized rescue capabilities.
Concluding remarks

- Local level response and localisation is a critical component of an effective disaster response system.
- Fit-for-purpose governance arrangements must be put in place to ensure accountability by local teams involved in disaster response initiatives.
- Local risk dynamics must be considered when developing flexible response training packages – avoid a one-size-fits-all mentality.
- Funding should be sourced to support implementation of flexible response training initiatives.

SESSION 4. ISG’S DECISIONS ON KEY ISSUES

Activities related to those coming from abroad

1. 76,310 citizens coming from abroad were observed in 169 student dormitories in 77 provinces.

2. Shelter, nutrition, and hygiene needs of the citizens settled on dormitories were fully met by AFAD’s coordination, and 2,106 personnel, 418 vehicles, and 2 mobile coordination trucks contributed to these efforts.

3. In this period, only 14 of our personnel were infected by Covid-19.

4. The reception and placing to dormitories of citizens coming from abroad and taking them to their homes in 81 cities all around Turkey has been conducted and coordinated by AFAD staff.

1. Since the beginning of the Covid-19 pandemic, in our country, Vefa Social Support Groups has been established among public institutions, local administrations, AFAD, Red Crescent, police and gendarmerie to meet the needs of the vulnerable groups. We contributed to help our citizens by participating in VEFA groups with our staff in 81 provinces and our AFAD volunteers.

2. Through VEFA Social Support Groups, 6,649,461 households were reached in 62 days, and all their needs from pension to food, from medicine to hygiene materials, were provided for those over 65 years old and those with chronic diseases.
• Maybe the biggest response experience for us during the pandemic was the earthquake that hit İzmir on October 30, 2020.

• Covid-19 tests were conducted to our response teams working in the aftermath of the earthquake based on Samos island on October 30, 2020, which affected our province of İzmir, before arriving at the region. The existing capacity of the responding teams on duty has been preserved.
Response Teams

1. The intervention teams were observed during their duties in the region, and those who were suspicious took tests. Masks and disinfectant were periodically distributed. For the comfort of the staff who were more stressed due to the pandemic, single rooms were arranged in hotels.

2. Teams took the tests before their departure and after the completion of the tasks. The pandemic was still going on and if they were infected, there was a possibility that they could pass the infection to their places of destination.

3. After the teams´ return to their provinces, they took tests for control purposes there to ensure they were not infected.
